This weekend package is devoted to the romance of the dance floor in the context of the ballroom. It may be the romance we bring to the dance with a life partner or it could be the story we create through our dancing. Either way, you won't want to miss it. Bring your partner along if you've found one, and don't despair if you haven't—there are plenty of single dancers out there.

Friday evening begins with an optional catered dinner and then, to help inspire us, we will be watching a DVD about one of the greatest romances of the ballroom world, featuring two of the most revered dancers in history.

Following a lovely brunch on Saturday morning, there will be afternoon workshops. There will be time for snacks and breaks factored into the schedule. Then have dinner out on Saturday evening (price not included) before heading off to the dance.

After another lovely brunch on Sunday morning, you dancers will bid each other farewell as you prepare to return to the mundane—a little lighter on your feet and a lot younger at heart. The dance, of course, goes on.
